Programs Offered
Bachelor of Arts in Communication Studies

The communication studies major is an innovative, interdisciplin- ary program that prepares students for careers in the media or for advanced graduate study.

Communication studies coordinates three distinct approaches to the media: practical application, historical study, and critical analysis. Practical application combines basic training in equipment operation, communication skills, production design, organizational skills, and professional internship. Historical study focuses on the evolution of the mass media and the relationship of the mass media to society. Critical analysis explores media ethics and the analysis and evaluation of specific mediated texts using qualitative and quantitative methods.

Students are encouraged to develop a specific advisory plan with the assistance of a faculty advisor. Advisory plans, based on the student’s specific interests, may focus on:

• General areas such as journalism, media criticism, or public relations;
• Media such as radio, television, online, and newspapers;
• Career roles such as television producer, sports announcer, or reporter; and
• Preparation for graduate school.

Students are required to take a senior-year internship. The depart- ment emphasizes internships that provide students with real-world insights into the media. The department has developed professional media internships with community organizations, radio and television stations, newspapers, magazines, public relations firms, and other media groups.

All on-campus media operate in conjunction with communication studies classes. On-campus media offer a variety of opportunities for students. They include the Star, the student newspaper; KSUN, an Internet radio station that can be heard at www.sonoma.edu/ksun; SSU-TV, the campus television station that provides news, information, and entertainment; and Primitivo PR.

Students are also required to take Senior Seminar in which they complete a senior project. This project combines their academic training in the major with a real world application.

Careers in Communication Studies

Graduates from the department find employment in the mass media and in the ever-growing field of communication. Some graduates find work by using their technical skills in radio, video, and comput- ers. Others rely on their training and experience to find jobs in the broad field of public relations. They write for and edit newspapers and newsletters, and design brochures and flyers. They are photog- raphers and are even employed by candidates running for public office. In addition, graduates design websites, edit films, produce documentaries, videotape weddings, record music, and serve as disc jockeys.

Past graduates have become lawyers and teachers, run employment agencies, are hired as fundraisers, private investigators, and work in law enforcement. Communication Studies graduates work in corporate or non-profit organizations doing sales, publicity, or marketing. Wherever communication takes place and whenever media are used, Communication Studies graduates can be found.
