The Warren Court Prize

For Excellence

For essays on matters of ethics, justice, civil liberties, or constitutional law

Open to all and only Sonoma State University students in good standing

Must be on a topic related to ethics, justice, or constitutional law

Must be accompanied by a provided Form of Approval for Submission signed by an SSU instructor (available in Nichols Hall 363)

May reflect empirical research, textual analysis, or theoretical innovation, but must present an argument

Length between 1500-2500 words, double-spaced

Submit three hard copies to the Philosophy Department office, Nichols Hall 363, by the deadline

For more information, visit the website for the Center for Ethics, Law, and Society:
http://www.sonoma.edu/philosophy/cels

Deadline for submissions: February 28, 2014, 3pm

Requirements for all submissions:

• Open to all and only Sonoma State University students in good standing
• Must be on a topic related to ethics, justice, or constitutional law
• Must be accompanied by a provided Form of Approval for Submission signed by an SSU instructor (available in Nichols Hall 363)
• May reflect empirical research, textual analysis, or theoretical innovation, but must present an argument
• Length between 1500-2500 words, double-spaced
• Submit three hard copies to the Philosophy Department office, Nichols Hall 363, by the deadline
• For more information, visit the website for the Center for Ethics, Law, and Society: http://www.sonoma.edu/philosophy/cels

Earl Warren was the 14th Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. The Warren Court is known for its pivotal role in promoting liberty and justice in America, through such landmark cases as Brown v. Board of Education, Griswold v. Connecticut, and Miranda v. Arizona. Sonoma State University’s Warren Court Prize is awarded annually to the student who best follows in the Warren Court’s tradition by producing an essay of excellent quality on matters of ethics, justice, civil liberties, or constitutional law.